

Foreign Policy: Trade

List every product that you have used in the last twenty-four hours. Include every item you have eaten, every article of clothing worn, and every tool or resource used for entertainment and study. Now, identify the country of origin of the products. You can use clothing labels to identify where your clothing was made. You can look online or reference packaging boxes to identify the country of origin of many other goods. Try your best to identify every item. (You must list and identify at least 10 items)

1.

2.

3.

4.

5.

6.

7.

8.

9.

10.

Question: How would your life change if the products you use from other countries were suddenly no longer available?